It was an inaugural food summit, with over 225 attendees representing CBOs, City Agencies, hospitality/restaurant workers, food distributors, agriculture, healthcare, etc. It was a two-day event that had panel discussions, farm tours, and workshops focused on solutions towards food justice and sovereignty, and actions needed to remove barriers towards a collective food system/good food vision. Please review the video recording for this presentation along with the Q&A and public comment, time stamped from 46:30 to 1:01:20.	None.
9. Discussion of report on San Francisco Commissions, Cissie Bonini (Chair, UCSF/Vouchers 4 Veggies – EatSF) 2:55 p.m.	Cissie Bonini held a discussion on the topic of San Francisco Commissions, and reviewed current reform efforts (e.g., the two qualified ballot measures pertaining to Commissions for the Nov. 5 election: City Commissions and Mayoral Authority, and Creating a Task Force to Recommend Changing, Eliminating, or Combining City Commissions). There are reports mentioning Commissions/Advisory Bodies such as SPUR’s Report and the Civil Grand Jury Report, the latter which recommended abolishing the Food Security Task Force, stating the task force is “redundant; we recommend the Human Services Agency perform this activity.” Cissie reviewed the Civil Grand Jury’s rationale for abolishing Commissions and compared these to the facts and functions of the Food Security Task Force and reviewed the role and accomplishments of the task force. Task Force members expressed dismay, disappointment, confusion, and being caught off guard by the Civil Grand Jury’s report. Task Force members were	None.

	unaware of the Civil Grand Jury’s process and unsure of how the Food Security Task Force caught their attention. Task Force members are concerned about making sure that accurate data and evidence are being presented to the Civil Grand Jury, and if the task force’s responsibilities were to be taken on by HSA, there is a lot of food security work programs funded and/or not aligned by and with HSA. The work done by the task force as a broad coalition has had huge impacts on food security. Task Force members also noted community attendance and participation at these meetings have been consistent with solid attendance. Very few groups that operate like the task force does has this level of community interaction. Task Force members expressed curiosity about who was interviewed for the Civil Grand Jury report so that we would have a better understanding of how they arrived at their recommendations. Cissie Bonini will be submitting a letter on behalf of the Food Security Task Force to the Mayor’s Office outlining the content that was in the presentation. Please review the video recording for this presentation along with the Q&A and public comment, time stamped from 1:01:20 to 1:33:30.

Roles and responsibilities for the Office of Food and Food Advisory Council were reviewed. Next steps were outlined, where a brief and slide deck will be created in August/September 2024. Later in the fall the subcommittee will meet with stakeholders to educate them on the proposal, provide background, and best practices and research from across the country. The Food Security Task Force will dissolve the subcommittee once the work is complete. Paula Jones provided some additional context. The task force is set to sunset in 2026 and this subcommittee has been actively looking at what would be a better structure going forward. What Jade just went through was related to that work and look at how other cities are organizing. This is not competitive with the Food Security Task Force.	None.
