PUBLIC COMMENT:

Joanna Hernandez, a parent of an incarcerated individual, sought to explore avenues for obtaining feedback from those who have previously been incarcerated. She recognized that many individuals hesitate to voice their concerns due to fears of retaliation. She believes it is essential to amplify the voices of those in the reentry process to identify potential improvements in their rehabilitation.

INSPECTOR GENERAL REPORT

Inspector General Terry Wiley gave a monthly report from the Office of the Inspector General including OIG activities in the 3rd quarter of 2024, jail visit to CJ2 women's facility, meeting with the Jail Visiting Committee and the Jail Justice Coalition and attending the annual conference of NACOLE.

Questions and comments from Members Wechter, Palmer, Afuhaamango, Nguyen, Soo.

PUBLIC COMMENT:

Joshua Jacobo intended to inquire whether the interviews were conducted in a private or public setting and mentioned that he had experienced forms of retaliation despite not being incarcerated. He emphasized that establishing trust is essential for uncovering the truth. Today, he engaged with individuals who expressed that the lockdowns are hindering their programming, demotivating those who are incarcerated, and adversely impacting their health. He expressed gratitude to Member Palmer for his advocacy and to Member Wechter for his questions.

Joanna Hernandez remarked that today marked the beginning of the Day of the Dead and requested a moment of silence to pay tribute to those who have died in custody, those who have lost their lives to violence, and to fallen officers. She pointed out that the removal of child visitation rights has detrimental effects on the children involved. She urged the board to evaluate the existing programs and requested that the land acknowledgment be read at the start of each meeting.

Tatiana Hernandez, the coordinator of the Barber Pathway Program at Bay Area Community Services, discussed various initiatives, including the Braider Project, and requested assistance in expanding these programs.

A. Lopez, who is visiting from Canada, expressed her desire to see her cousin currently incarcerated in the San Francisco jails. However, she has faced difficulties in arranging a visit through the online system. Member Soo recommended reaching out to Prisoner Legal Services and requested Inspector General Wiley's assistance in facilitating the visit.
