| Port property                          | The City, through its Port Commission, manages approximately 7-1/2 miles of property along the City's east side from Fisherman's Wharf to India Basin. Port lands include former tidelands that were filled to create the port, including the seawall that defines The Embarcadero shoreline, the finger piers, and the major filled areas of the Port's southern waterfront, which include deep-water berths and 145 acres of paved cargo handling facilities at Pier 80 and Piers 94-96. The seawall created additional filled areas, which are separated from the water in many locations by City streets. Port property does not include all of the eastern San Francisco Bay shoreline area. For example, a stretch of non-Port property between 22nd Street and 24th Street includes the former Potrero Power Plant, which is privately owned. There also are significant undeveloped, privately owned sites in Mission Bay adjacent to the Bay shoreline, including a 14-acre site between 3rd Street and Terry Francois Boulevard. Other privately owned parcels are also located along the eastern shoreline. | Jun-14         |
