Applying for Jobs at the City and County of San Francisco
Best Practices Guide

Developed by the Office of the City Administrator in partnership with the Department of Public Works
The Office of the City Administrator is committed to ensuring that the Department is a safe, equitable, and inclusive workplace for individuals of all races. This includes creating opportunities for hiring, promotion, retention, training, and development, particularly for Black, Indigenous, and people of color (BIPOC).

This best practices guide aims to support potential City job candidates and current employees seeking promotion opportunities through the application process.

Staying up-to-date on new job openings

Don’t miss a new job posting! You can sign up to receive alerts about new job postings on the City and County of San Francisco careers site Careers.sf.gov
Staying up-to-date on new job openings

● You do not need to complete all the fields to sign up for job alerts.
● Enter keywords related to the job you are interested in such as:
  ○ City job classifications (e.g., 1404)
  ○ Words or phrases (e.g., Clerk, Project Manager).
● To receive alerts about multiple jobs, you must separate job alerts for each keyword.
● Do not use commas or semicolons such as “project manager, project management.”
Understanding the application process

Learn more about the application process and what to expect when you submit an application.

- Visit the Department of Human Resources Job Seekers page to learn each step of the process and find more resources about applying for City jobs.
- Visit the Office of the City Administrator’s Resources for Job Seekers page to review our guide on how to apply to City jobs and see tips to support you through the process.
Finding a role

Visit the City and County of San Francisco careers site at Careers.sf.gov to find roles you are interested in.

- Use the search feature to find jobs using keywords such as “manager” “construction,” and “technology.”
- Filter the list to search for jobs by City department.
- Find remote jobs by checking off the “Employees can work remotely” box at the top of the page.
Reviewing job postings

Once you have found a job you are interested in on SmartRecruiters, pay attention to its:

- Work hours and location
- Compensation
- Exam type, if required
- Role type - Learn more about role types on the City’s careers site.

How to Qualify

1. Six (6) months verifiable hands-on professional or volunteer experience in the care, feeding and/or handling of animals in a facility that cares for and/or houses animals (e.g., animal care/control agency, humane society, veterinary hospital, boarding or pet day care facility, or pet store), working principally with dogs and cats; OR

2. 30 semester or 45 quarter units of coursework in an animal husbandry, veterinary science or a related program at an accredited college or university.

Important: Your application MUST include a resume. To upload these item(s), please attach using the “additional attachments” function.

Demonstrating you meet the minimum qualifications for a job

To be eligible for a job, applicants must meet the minimum qualifications (MQs) listed on the job description. It is important that the information you provide in your application demonstrates how you meet each of the requirements.

- Ensure you meet the MQs by counting the years and months of experience in the areas indicated in the job posting.
- Be prepared to contact previous employers. They will need to verify your work experience.
- Prepare documentation verifying you meet the MQs. These might be copies of your diplomas, college transcripts, certifications, or licenses.
What if you don’t meet the minimum qualifications for the job you want?

If you do not meet the minimum qualifications for a job, do not give up! Now that you know what qualifications are needed, you can work towards acquiring them.

- This might mean obtaining a certificate, job experience, or pursuing the degrees required.
- The City offers Career Pathway Programs that welcome entry level employees and apprentices.

Managing your applications

SmartRecruiters, the City’s application platform allows you create a profile to save your information and manage your applications. Visit Smartr.me to create or access your profile or click on “Manage my applications and profile” on the City’s career site.

City employees can create profiles from the SF Employee Gateway by visiting the MyApps Portal page. Visit our Resources for Job Seekers to learn more about SmartRecruiters.
Preparing for interviews

Job interviews are an opportunity to share information about your work experience, skills, and professional background with hiring managers and interview panels.

- Visit our Resources for Job Seekers page to review our Practice Interview Questions for Job Seekers to prepare before your interview.
- Familiarize yourself with the department and the job you are interviewing for.
- Prepare questions to ask your interviewers. Employment is a relationship between you and the employer. Interviews are an opportunity for you to learn more about the department and determine if it is a good fit for you.
Preparing for examinations, if required

Job seekers applying to permanent civil service positions who meet the minimum qualifications are invited to go through examinations to be placed on eligible candidate lists. The purpose of the examination is to create an applicant pool of qualified candidates to be considered for employment.

- Take a method identification showing your picture photograph to your examination appointment.
- If your examination is in person, dress comfortably and arrive on time.
- Closely follow the instructions shared by the hiring manager contacting you to invite you to your examination.
After being extended a conditional job offer, prospective employees may be required to complete background and reference checks. The types of checks differ across jobs. You may be required to complete the following:

- Medical examination, which might include drug testing
- Fingerprinting
- Background check and/or security clearance
- Criminal record - Review the City’s Conviction History FAQs
- Motor vehicle record
- Work history (job title, start and end dates, hours worked, and job duties) verifiable by your previous employers

| Before starting the hiring process, hiring managers complete a few approval steps. These include:
- Reviewing the status of current vacancies
- Reviewing budgeted and allocated positions
- Getting additional approval from the Department of Human Resources
This is typically known as the Request to Fill portion of the hiring process. | The hiring team begins recruiting for the job.
They target the right audiences and amplify the job to get as many eyes on it as possible.
Strategies include posting the job on job portals, social media sites, and conducting outreach to community based organizations and other networks.
This step might not be needed if there is an existing list of qualified applicants. | The hiring team reviews applications to verify which applicants meet the minimum qualifications for the job.
For Permanent Civil Service jobs, this includes an examination.
This will determine an eligible list of candidates to choose from. | The hiring team selects qualified candidates to move forward with and interview.
The hiring team is not able to select Permanent Civil Service applicants beyond the list of eligible candidates submitted by HR.
This is known as the "certification rule," which is determined by:
- # of hires city-wide
- # of eligible candidates
- negotiations with Unions | Prospective employees go through a security screen.
The number of checks is determined by their roles and responsibilities and the department they are joining.
This process involves the FBI and the Department of Justice, so it is common for it to take a while to complete.
The hiring team keeps candidates updated on the status of the checks when possible. | The new employee is onboarded!
New employees complete required onboarding trainings and paperwork. |
