Slavery Era Disclosure Affidavit
(San Francisco Administrative Code Chapter 12Y)

1. I, DAVID KEPPEL am the authorized representative and custodian of records of U.S. BANK N.A. (Contractor). I have searched, or caused to be searched under my direction, any and all records in the Contractor's possession or control, including records of any parent or subsidiary entity or Predecessor Company, and have made a good faith effort to search any relevant records that are within the Contractor's knowledge but not within its possession or control, for evidence that the Contractor, its parent or subsidiary entity, or its Predecessor Company Participated in the Slave Trade or received Profits from the Slave Trade.

2. [X] I have [] I have not located relevant records. If I have located relevant records, I am attaching to this affidavit as Exhibit A: (1) the names of each Person Subjected to Slavery, each Slaveholder, and each person or entity who Participated in the Slave Trade or derived Profits from the Slave Trade, mentioned in the records, (2) a description of the type of transactions, services, or other acts evidenced by the records; and, (3) the extent and nature of any Profits from the Slave Trade evidenced by the records. If I have not located relevant records, then I am attaching to this affidavit as Exhibit B the names of each parent or subsidiary entity or Predecessor Company whose records I searched or caused to be searched. This information is incorporated herein as if fully set forth.

3. I understand that this affidavit shall be subject to public disclosure pursuant to state, local or federal law.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 31 day of AUGUST, 2007, in SAN FRANCISCO (city), CALIFORNIA (state).

CERTIFICATION REGARDING SLAVERY ERA BUSINESS

U.S. Bank National Association was formed from the following major banks: (1) Star Bank, National Association (Cincinnati, Ohio) changed its name to Firststar Bank, National Association (Cincinnati, Ohio) effective February 1999; (2) Mercantile Bank National Association (St. Louis, Missouri) merged into Firststar Bank, National Association (Cincinnati, Ohio) effective April 2000; (3) United States National Bank of Oregon (Portland, Oregon) merged with First Bank, National Association under the title U.S. Bank National Association effective August 1997; (4) U.S. Bank National Association merged into Firststar Bank, National Association, and the succeeding bank, changed its name to U.S. Bank National Association effective August 2001. These banks acquired through mergers and acquisitions numerous smaller banks. There are five hundred and forty-two U.S. Bank National Association predecessors. Thirty-three predecessors were founded before the abolition of slavery in December 1865. Thirteen of the pre-1866 predecessors were established in southern slave-holding states and territories, including Kansas, Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee. (See Attachment 1 to this Attachment B for a comprehensive list of predecessor banks).

U.S. Bank National Association has identified external records of its predecessors which necessitate disclosure. The conveyance records, while showing no record of direct ownership of enslaved individuals, did contain records of founders and/or directors of predecessor banks owning enslaved individuals, as well as a record where an enslaved individual was the collateral for a loan. Specifically, the first president of predecessor Marion National Bank of Lebanon, Kentucky (founded in 1856), Benedict Spalding, owned two enslaved individuals in 1850. In 1860 someone with a similar name "Benidict Spalding" is also listed as having owned fourteen enslaved individuals. In addition, certain members of the Marion National Bank of Lebanon's board of directors (called "commissioners") owned approximately forty-seven enslaved individuals in total (the records include abbreviated names which we conclude may be references to commissioners). The first president of predecessor First National Bank of Clarksville, Tennessee (founded in 1865), S.F. Beaumont, owned one enslaved individual in 1860. The first president of predecessor St. Louis Building and Savings Association, Missouri (founded in 1857), Marshall Brotherton, owned ten enslaved individuals in 1850 and four enslaved individuals in 1860. Merchants Bank (founded in 1857) and Bank of St. Louis (founded in 1857), both predecessors, along with a group of other St. Louis firms, issued a mortgage to Charles McLaran that was secured by his property, which included an unspecified number of enslaved individuals. However, the 1860 Federal Census Slave Schedule for St. Louis provided that Charles McLaran owned thirteen enslaved individuals.

Attachment 2 to this Attachment B lists the specific information regarding enslaved individuals.

ENSLAVED INDIVIDUALS OWNED BY PREDECESSOR BANKS OR ITS FOUNDERS

Marion National Bank (1856)

Marion National Bank opened in 1856 as the Deposit Bank of Lebanon. This bank was started with $50,000 in capital from its commissioners, included among such commissioners was Benedict Spaulding. By 1860, the bank had become a local branch of the Commercial Bank of Kentucky. After several mergers and acquisitions this bank was acquired by Star Bank, National Association in 1992. Kentucky conveyance records do not indicate that the bank owned or sold slaves. Nor is there any indication that the bank issued mortgages that were secured by slaves. However, the 1850 Federal Census Slave Schedule for Marion County, Kentucky, indicates that the bank's founding president, Benedict Spaulding, owned two enslaved individuals – a 28-year old male and a 24-year old female. In 1860 Benedict Spaulding, or someone of a similar name is listed as owning fourteen enslaved individuals as noted below.

The 1850 Federal Slave Schedule also indicates that Marion National Bank Commissioners, D.W. Phillips, L.A. Spalding, Joseph M. Bowman, R.H. Rowntree, John Shuck, John Chandler, and N.S. Ray owned enslaved individuals. D.W. Phillips owned five enslaved individuals – a 21-year old female, 15-year old male, 13-year old female, 6-year old female, and a 9-year old female. L.A. Spalding, noted as Leonard A. Spalding in the Slave Schedule, owned nine enslaved individuals – a 40-year old male, 25-year old male, 27-year old female, 23-year old female, 19-year old male, 6-year old male, 4-year old female, 2-year old male, and an 18-month old female. Joseph M. Bowman owned fifteen enslaved individuals – a 43-year old male, 42-year old male, 40-year old female, 20-year old male, 14-year old female, 13-year old female, 12-year old male, 10-year old female, 9-year old male, 9-year old female, 6-year old male, 5-year old female, 3-year old female, and two 2-year old males. R.H. Rowntree owned five enslaved individuals – a 43-year old male, 41-year old female, 19-year old female, 13-year old male, and an 11-year old female. John Shuck owned four enslaved individuals – a 65-year old female, 53-year old male, 50 year-old male, and a 27-year old female. John Chandler owned six enslaved individuals – a 21-year old female, 20-year old female, 16-year old female, 4-year old male, 3-year old female, and a 2-year old male. N.S. Ray, commissioner and cashier for the Marion National Bank, owned a total of three enslaved individuals – an 18-year old female, 10-year old female, and an 8-year old male. (See Exhibit 1 for the related documents.)

The 1860 Federal Census Slave Schedule for Marion County has no listing for a “Benedict Spaulding,” but rather a “Benidict Spalding.” It is unclear whether this is simply a spelling error, a family relative of Benedict Spaulding, or someone of no relation to Benedict Spaulding at all.

“Benidict Spalding” is listed as owning fourteen slaves in 1860a – 60 year-old male, 40-year old female, 27-year old male, 22-year old male, 20-year old male, 18-year old female, 16-year old female, 14-year old female, 13-year old male, 10-year old male, 9-year old male, 6-year old female, 4-year old male, and a 2-year old male. The 1860 schedule also indicates that the following commissioners owned enslaved individuals: D.W. Phillips, L.A. Spalding, John Shuck, and N.S. Ray. D.W. Phillips owned seventeen slaves—a 58-year old female, 50-year old male, 32-year old female, 28-year old female, 24-year old male, 22-year old male, two 19-year old females, two 17-year old females, 14-year old male, 14-year old female, 13-year old male, 11-year old male, two 8-year old males, and a 2-year old female. L.A. Spalding owned sixteen enslaved individuals. – a 75-year old female, 45-year old male, 43-year old female, 37-year old female, 29-year old male, 17 year old female, 15-year old male, 13-year old female, 13-year old male, 11-year old male, 9-year old male, 7-year old female, 6-year old male, 5-year old male, 3-year old male, and a 2-year-old female. John Shuck owned nine enslaved individuals – a 70-year old female, 60-year old male, 55-year old male, 45-year old male, two 35-year old females, 10-year old male, 7-year old female, and a 3-year old male. N.S. Ray, commissioner and cashier for the Marion National Bank, owned a total of nine enslaved individuals – a 51-year old female, 50-year old male, 40-year old male, 21-year old male, 18-year old female, two 15-year old males, 11-year old female, and a 3-year old male. (See Exhibit 1 for the related documents).

St. Louis Building and Savings Association

A review of property conveyance records in St. Louis does not indicate that the bank ever bought or sold slaves, or issued mortgages in which slaves were used as collateral. However, the 1850 Federal Slave Schedule indicates that the bank’s first president, Marshal Brotherton, owned ten enslaved individuals. The enslaved individuals included: a 35-year old male, 30-year old female, 21-year old male, 17-year old male, 14-year old male, 10-year old male, 8-year old female, 6-year old male, 4-year old female, and a 9-month old male. The 1860 Federal Slave Schedule records Brotherton as owning four enslaved individuals, a 16-year old male, a 15-year old male, a 14-year old female, and a 1-year old male. See Exhibit 2 for the related documents.)

Merchants Bank of St. Louis and the Bank of St. Louis

Property conveyance records held at the St. Louis Recorder of Deeds Office identified one transaction involving an enslaved individual. On January 6, 1863, two U.S. Bank National Association predecessors – Merchants Bank of St. Louis and the Bank of St. Louis – along with four other local firms provided a mortgage to Charles McLaran which was secured by his personal property. The document describes McLaran’s land holdings and lists his other property, including an unspecified number of enslaved individuals. On December 20, 1863, the mortgage was released after McLaran paid back all debts owned to the institutions. The 1860 Federal Census Slave Schedule for St. Louis indicates that McLaran owned thirteen enslaved individuals. (See Exhibit 3 for the related documents.)

First National Bank of Clarksville

According to information provided by the Tennessee State Library and Archives, the bank was founded in November of 1865 with an initial capital of $50,000. The bank’s first president was

S.F. Beaumont, and its first cashier was W.P. Hune. The bank appears to have been formed to act as local fiscal agent for the state and the federal government, as Clarksville was under occupation by Union troops. According to the 1860 Federal Slave Schedule for Montgomery County, Tennessee, S.F. Beaumont owned one enslaved individual – a 27-year old woman – in 1860. (See Exhibit 4 for the related documents.)

Lebanon, Kentucky

1856

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE TREASURY

James M. Jones

James M. Jones, Treasurer of the
Marion National Bank, Lexington,
Kentucky

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to the report of the Comptroller of the Currency, dated June 10, 1914, in which it is stated that the Marion National Bank, Lexington, Kentucky, is a member bank of the Federal Reserve System.

This charter, dated June 3, 1871, was superseded by an act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in 1875 which created the Deposit Bank of Lexington. In 1890, the Deposit Bank became a branch of the Commercial Bank of Kentucky, but in 1917 assumed the own identity as the Marion National Bank.

Very
Sincerely,
James M. Jones

OR 100 years the Marion National Bank has looked forward—for the progress and development of Johnson and Marion County. Now, with pride and gratitude, we ask our patrons and friends to join in a glance backward at the work and events that have produced this institution.

No institution of lasting importance develops by chance. This bank has had the fortune to be guided by officers of foresight and wisdom; to have executives and employees of ability and diligence; and of equal importance to have as patrons literally thousands of hardy and ambitious Marion County and Central Kentuckians.

Only a fraction of the persons who have been a part of our 100 years of progress could be named without book-length proportions. But each service of business transaction has a lasting recognition in the institution built by and for its friends.

About the Early Presidents of the MARIION NATIONAL BANK

Beneficial Spalding, 1855-1869

Research has developed little knowledge of the affairs of "Beneficial" Spalding except that he established an early interest in the financial interests of the area. There was a Beneficial Spalding, Sr., who came from Maryland in 1798 and he is said to have owned the land on which Robinson is located. His son, Beneficial Spalding, Jr., built the beautiful brick house in which Ben Campbell, a long resident of this bank, now resides.

Washington American Resources, 1869-1871

President Kinnear was a lawyer of great ability and the second money center bank of Marion County. He assisted with the work of opening the charter of the Depot Bank and was chairman of the Commercial Bank when it became the Marion National Bank. He was born on Nov. 21, 1813. When Jesse James was killed in Missouri, he was wearing Mr. Kinnear's watch which he had taken from him in a hold-up of the Cassport stage.

Samuel Spalding, 1871-1903

President Spalding was the first clerk of Marion County, serving with B. H. Rowzee as his deputy. He organized the Commercial Bank and was a director of its successor, the Marion National Bank. He was designated as the collector of the 1880-1890 subscription in his area to build the Louisville and Nashville Railroad extension to Lebanon. He is said to have secured more cash than any other man in the county. He was considered one of the county's "Grand Old Men."

R. W. Edmonds, 1903-1905

President Edmonds was a man of the highest type of citizenship and had a reputation for great personal integrity. He was a highly successful business man and gave much time to the financial affairs of the area.

Joseph H. Knott, 1906-1907

President Knott was a nephew of Governor J. Proctor Knott, who had served faithfully as one of the bank's directors (1878-1914). He was considered an able business man and served as cashier from March 9, 1885, to 1905, when he became president.

H. C. Rogers, 1907-1919

Franklin Rogers had been interested in the bank many years. He was made a director in 1896, and became vice-president in 1903. He was elected president on November 11, 1907, and served until his death on November 13, 1919.

H. P. Myers, 1919-1945

President Myers was active in many of the civic affairs of the city. He served as president of the City Board of Education from December 31, 1923, until his death on September 30, 1945. He became a director in the bank on March 24, 1911, and in January, 1916, was elected vice president. He was one of Lebanon's prominent business men.

Centennial of Service

Over the Marion National Bank has grown through 100 years of service, gaining confidence, respect and concrete assets. It is difficult to look backward and see with full appreciation just how a few forefathers' trust would build a three million dollar organization.

It seems obvious now that such a bank should prosper through service and stability. But 10 men certainly risked for nothing their starting as leading citizens when, on March 5, 1856, they organized a special act of the Kentucky General Assembly, and opening doors to open the Deposit Bank of Lebanon. Lebanon was a very small town—and the value of a dollar was much larger—when the act required in these days' concept of the opening of the bank by commissioners D. W. Phillips, L. A. Spalding, Foster Rose, Joseph H. Inoué, B. H. Hooper, John Spink, Benedict Spalding Sr., John W. Chamberlain, Henry Nelson and N. S. Day.

And this institution, now the Marion National Bank, looks forward to its further service and growth after 100 years of existence to tribute to the courage and wisdom of these founders.

The bank was authorized to open with $100,000 capital and the 50,000 could paid by it began business with Henry Hooper as president and N. S. Day as cashier.

The remaining responded to the establishment of a trust, and by this means to serve, is best shown by the fact that only four years later it was decided to expand the resources. Thus the Deposit Bank of Lebanon was succeeded by a branch of the Commercial Bank of Kentucky with capital of $1,250,000 and with the same officers. This branch, historian R. W. Smith records, "for some time in its existence had a larger and more prosperous business in proportion to capital invested than the mother bank."

But, again sensing the need for expansion and seeking a return to complete independence to serve the banker's home area, the officers retired the branch on May 23, 1874, and succeeded it the same day with the Marion National Bank, chartered by the E. S. Comptroller of Currency, on June 3, 1874 and capitalized at $1,500,000. Original articles of Association and Organization Certificate had been signed on May 13, 1874.

R. H. Rowntree had become president in 1860, at the death of Benedict Spalding. N. S. Day continued as cashier.

ing streams erecting public buildings, etc., at the cost of the people, and the general feeling of all, seemed to be nothing less than to persist in this wild and rash expenditure of money. All these things portended to the minds of the more thoughtful and practical, a most disastrous financial condition of the country in the near future, and soon the fact was realized in full force, and many honest and good men of our country were either crushed or greatly crippled in the destructive explosion which followed in 1839, 1840, 1841 and 1842. So universal was the financial calamity that the Congress of the United States thought it wise and did pass a general bankrupt law, which in effect, was a final and full payment of all the debts of the debtor who would give to his creditor all his property and money, which was to be divided pro rata among his creditors.

In many instances in this county, as well as elsewhere, the bankrupt law proved to be a great fraud. It created an opportunity to those who were disposed to cover up their assets, or get them out of their possession for a time, that after a final clearance from all legal liabilities much of the assets could be repossessed and enjoyed with all indebtedness cancelled. Many good and honest men, however, there were, who notwithstanding their legal release from their debts by the bankrupt law, were governed by moral obligation that the law could not cancel, and paid afterwards every cent of their indebtedness, both principal and interest. In such cases the law acted beneficially by giving time to those who were honest enough to pay their debts finally.

In the year 1856 the Deposit Bank of Lebanon was established, with a capital of $50,000 with Ben Spalding as President and W. S. Ray Cashier. The charter of this bank was the work of R. H. Rowntree and W. S. Ray. This bank paid four per cent, per annum, on certain deposits, depending on the amount and the time they were held by the bank, and the accommodations afforded by this bank were of very great convenience and benefit to the tradesmen and the citizens of the county generally, and largely enhanced its commercial interests in every department of traffic. It is true there had been branches of some of the State banks established in some of the neighboring counties prior to that time, and were then doing business, with capital sufficient to meet all demands made upon them, yet our citizens felt the necessity of having banking facilities at home. After the Deposit Bank had been organized a few years and found to be a success, it became also apparent that the accommodations that this bank with its small capital, was able to afford were inadequate to meet the demand made upon it. It was, therefore, at once determined by the manager's and stockholders to enlarge the banking facilities of the county. To do this, a branch of the Commercial Bank of Kentucky located at Paducah was obtained and on the 11th day of September, 1860, the Deposit Bank was closed and on the 12th of September (the next day) the branch of the Commercial Bank was established with a capital of $125,000, with Ben Spalding as President and N. S. Ray Cashier. This bank paid at one time four per cent on deposits. This bank did a great deal of business at home and abroad, and for some time in its existence did a larger and more prosperous business in proportion to capital invested than the mother bank. Just after the close of the war it was determined, by some gentlemen of means, who realized a growing demand in the county for the use of money, to establish a private bank in Lebanon. The bank was established by "Burton, Mitchell & Co." John A. Burton, of Perryville, the father of R. A. Burton, of this county, was the largest stockholder, and was president of the bank. C. W. Mitchell, a former cashier of a bank at Danville or Harrodsburg, was made cashier.

The private bank went into operation October 24, 1866, and continued until April 1, 1869, at which time it was re-organized. The National Bank of Lebanon was established with a capital of $125,000. The directory elected Hon. R. M. Spalding president, and C. W. Mitchell cashier. In a short time after this bank had been established, perhaps not more than one year, its cashier became thoroughly convinced in his own mind--as it was supposed--that it was very necessary that he should "take a trip," not only for his own personal benefit, but also for the future interest of the bank, which he felt had been going into a very rapid decline during the past year. He left Henry Wilkin, the bookkeeper, to take care of the invalid, and he went "where the woodbine twineth," that is to say, he was supposed to have gone "in silence and in haste," to a "city of refuge"--the great sanitarium where bankers from the United States go to this day, who are afflicted with a "persistent perversion" of "moral honesty" to such an alarming extent that no alternative can have the slightest effect upon that part of the constitution called "strict integrity"--whether he ever recovered entirely I know not. In 1870, Henry Wilke was elected cashier to succeed Mitchell, and held that position until March 5, 1881, when he resigned. Robt. E. Kirk was elected cashier, which position he held for some time. R. M. Spalding was president from the organization of the bank until death in September, 1883, a term of fourteen years. He filled the place with honor to himself in his fidelity to the trust conferred upon him by the stockholders of the bank, and from whose walks in social and political life a bright halo will ever crown his memory.

At the death of Mr. Spalding, Mr. Fletcher Wilson assumed the duties of president, after an election by the proper authorities.

On the 22nd day of May, 1874, the Commercial Bank stockholders, with R. H. Rowntree president, who had succeeded Mr. Ben Spalding, the first president some years before, and N. S. Ray cashier, retired the Commercial Bank and organized on the same day the "Marion National Bank" in its place, with the capital increase to $150,000, electing R. H. Rowntree its president and N. S. Ray its cashier. Mr. Ray had been cashier since the establishment of the Deposit Bank in 1856, and was continued until his death in March, 1885, nearly thirty years in all. With the exception of a few years of this time, he was in banks of this county. The few years of his absence the office of cashier of the Commercial Bank was filled, with ability and fidelity, by Mr. James H. Vivion, who is now banker in Orlando, Florida. After the death of Mr. Ray, the position was given to Joseph M. Knott by the directors, who was cashier of the Marion National Bank for some time. For several years before the "Branch of the Commercial Bank" was retired, R. H. Rowntree was its president, and was elected president of the Marion Bank at its organization, in which responsible position he has been continued to present time by the stockholders, through the successive directories of the bank, an honor to which he was eminently entitled for his financial ability, his devotedness to the best interests of the bank and its stockholders, and his well known integrity as a thorough business man and able banker, and whose character in social and private life is unexceptionable.

Thus closes the monetary history of our county--from the very first bank--an institution established in the State during the time it was a part of the territory of Washington county, ninety-five years ago, and since its establishment fifty-three years ago. This history, while it does not pretend to give a detailed outline, aims to introduce merely some of the prominent features assumed in the line of the life of "paper passing for money," and used by citizens of this county as currency from its pioneer epoch to the present day. It may be added, and with pride to the county, that the banks of the county are at this date in a flourishing condition, well managed, yielding fair dividends, the stock much desired as investments by persons at home and abroad, and while marketable at from $140 to $150 per share, few shares were offered. This fact, with the additional fact that the outstanding bonds of the banks are above par value, shows the healthy and the prosperous monetary condition of the county in a strong and very favorable light.

The patriotism and heroism of the citizens of Marion county have never been found wanting in any emergency whenever called upon. In the earliest pioneer days of our territory the heroism of our ancestors was well known to the skirmishes with roving bands of the savage Indians when on their raids through the settlements, as well as the ready response to every call to arms

"Its operation will remedy some of the most serious evils in the banking system of Illinois. It will bring out of the woods some banks, and make the redemption of the bills of others more convenient to the holders. We shall have no more of visits to Shawneetown or elsewhere, with ten or fifteen thousand dollars in notes of the Bank, to be redeemed in quarters and halves, a sum in silver that would fill packages of enormous size and weight, and could be moved only at great expense." 26.

Robert Marcellus Stewart was Governor of Missouri at that time and his biographers point with pride to the establishment of the new state banking system during his term of office. It gave the state "increased and much needed banking facilities and a state bank examiner, or bank commissioner." 27. All in all the new Missouri banking law was satisfactory although it had certain weaknesses.

"Attention was still centered on the issue function, no special provisions being made for the safety of deposits. The requirement that the surplus added each year must be invested in state bonds was of doubtful wisdom. Moreover, the machinery of note redemption was inadequate. By making branch notes payable only at the counter of the issuing branch they were inevitably placed at a disadvantage compared with the circulation of the main office. Still the new banks could not be paper institutions. The law, if enforced, would produce institutions that would meet their obligations. The State Bank was given no special privileges. It was to become merely one of a group of chartered banks. The state was not yet ready to give up its investment. However, the theory of one great banking house with a monopoly of the circulation and furnishing banking facilities for all the people had been abandoned." 28.

Claiborne F. Jackson was the first bank commissioner of Missouri and he immediately made preparations to supervise the opening of the newly chartered banks. Stock in the banks was taken easily in New York as well as St. Louis, 29. as the city and state were prosperous and offered a fair field for legitimate investment. 30.

On February 14, 1857, "the same year the first banking law of the state was passed, an institution called the St. Louis Building and Savings Association was organized. Its beginning was humble and undemonstrative but it had the good fortune to be under prudent management from the start. 31. Another source adds, "it was admirably managed and prosperity attended it from the beginning." 32.

The advent of this small bank, the first ancestor of Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Company, rated no newspaper publicity. In fact, on that date the papers were much more concerned with the superb performance of Edwin Booth, the great tragedian, who made his first St. Louis appearance at that time as Richard III. 33.

CHAPTER III

ST. LOUIS BUILDING AND SAVINGS ASSOCIATION, 1857-1861

After securing the charter, the founders of the bank were busy with the preparations for the start of actual business. The first thing was to open subscription books and notice of this was reported as follows:

"On the 9th of March, 1857 books of subscription to the capital stock of the St. Louis Building and Savings Association were opened at the rooms of the Mechanics and Manufacturers' Exchange on Chestnut Street in the city of St. Louis and were kept open at that place under charge of the commissioners appointed to open books of subscription, until the 14th of March between the hours of nine o'clock A.M. and three o'clock P.M. of each day, of which notice was given by advertisement in the Republician, Democrat, and Announcer or Westens Newspapers." 1.

On the 14th of March, 1857 the following notice appeared in the papers:

"The subscribers to the capital stock of the St. Louis Building and Savings Association will meet at the rooms of the Mechanics and Manufacturers Exchange on Chestnut Street, between Third and Fourth Streets, on Wednesday evening, March 25, at half past seven o'clock, to elect nine directors. A full attendance is desired. Subscriptions to the capital stock of the Association may be made, upon the subscription books, at the office of P. A. Laue, No. 35 Pine Street, between Second and Third Streets, from the 16th until the 20th instant unless the entire amount of the authorized capital stock is sooner subscribed.

Incorporators and Commissioners

Asa Wilgus
Clark J. Morton
Peter A. Laue
William Hassinger
John F. Darby
George M. Moore
William H. Maurice
I. G. McClellan" 2.

The first public meeting was held on March 25, 1857 and the following nine men were elected directors:

1. Minute Book, St. Louis Building and Savings Association, Vol. I, 1857-1861, p. 30.

John F. Darby
 Marshall Brotherton
 Laurason Riggs
 Felix Costa
 Carlos S. Greeley

Robert A. Funkhouser
 Henry Doornstein
 William Haezinger
 William H. Maurice,

At the first meeting of the Directors Marshall Brotherton was elected President, R. A. Funkhouser, Vice President, and P. A. Ladue, Secretary-Treasurer.

Marshall Brotherton and his brother came from Pennsylvania in the early days. His brother was sheriff of St. Louis and Marshall was his deputy. Afterwards, Marshall became sheriff and was reelected several times. For his reputation of integrity and devotion to duty he was chosen President of the St. Louis Building and Savings Association. Afterward he served as President of the Bremen Savings Bank. ⁵ The first act of the new President was to appoint a Committee of three to secure a place of business for the Association.

It was voted, at this meeting, that no person or business firm hereafter subscribing to the capital stock of the Association shall be permitted to subscribe more than six shares. ⁶

On April 1, 1857 at the meeting of the board:

"Mr. Greeley on behalf of the committee to secure a place of business for the Association, reported in favor of accepting, on the offer of Mr. Ladue the tenement on Second Street next door north of the Hostmen's Savings Institution, at the annual rent of nine hundred dollars, for the term of eight years, or as long as the Association may wish to use said tenement as a Banking House." ⁷

At the meeting on May 15, 1857, a committee was appointed "to examine the charter of the Association and determine the powers and privileges possessed by the Association....in reference to banking." ⁸

The committee reported on June 10, that "The Association had full power to do a banking business and for that purpose might use the capital stock of the Association as well as the money deposited by the regular depositors of the Association." 9.

The capital stock was placed at $500,000 divided into 1000 shares of $500 each. The stock was to be paid in monthly installments at $2.50 per share and no subscriber was to take more than six shares. If this plan had been adhered to it would have taken 16 years for the bank to acquire its full working capital which seems rather a slow process now. However, some of the stockholders thought it was too rapid and we find several of them turning over their stock after having paid only two installments or $5. 10.

The transfer of the stock of John Schmidt to Augustus E. Boernstein is the first transaction of the kind recorded.

At the April 15 meeting the Treasurer was instructed to open account with Messrs. Darby and Berksdale, private bankers, to deposit the Association funds with them for the present time, "provided they will pay interest on the same at the rate of six per cent per annum." 11. The Secretary was ordered to give notice that the money on hand was to be loaned at the next monthly meeting. At that time $2000 was put in for loans in sums of one thousand dollars at 5% interest. The Board resolved to pay 5% on current deposits, 6% on deposits for six months or more and the rate of interest on discount should be 10%. 12.

In the Missouri Republican of July 8, 1857 the notice of opening was published:

St. Louis Building and Savings Association
Banking House
No. 49 Second St.
This Association receives on deposit currency and specie funds. 13

That deposits were made is evidenced by the fact that the building of a vault was authorized on August 31.

The paid-up capital at the time of the bank's opening was $8500. A single counter furnished the new banking house, a safe was purchased for $6.50, line of action to avert a threatened panic. October of 1861 was indeed a crucial time and the bank presidents met and tried to bring about an understanding of their position. There was confusion because many of the St. Louis banks refused to receive each other's notes. Eventually, they all agreed to accept the notes of the State, Mechanics, Merchants, and Southern banks. ⁴

In July, 1861, after the battle of Bull Run, it was brought home to the bankers of St. Louis what the war really meant to their business. They faced not only the confusion of a country at war, but the paralyzing effects of a border city where brother fought brother and father fought son. Feeling ran high. Business in many lines was suspended and much of the natural trade territory of the city was completely paralyzed. The bankers had to feel their way. At this point when everyone was looking askance at his neighbor, the bank presidents worked hard for their own financial salvation and they met frequently to discuss their mutual problems.

When the State Commissioner reported on the condition of St. Louis Banks in July 1861, he found that they had the following amounts of money outstanding to the government:

St. Louis	$ 472,110
Mechanics	832,625
Southern	715,070
Union	1,067,510

The Savings institutions had a total of $3,000,000. The circulation of the seven banks was practically the money on which business was being done in St. Louis. ⁵ The banking houses in St. Louis performed a great service during the exciting days of 1861. The sub-treasury could not take care of the demands upon it so the banks were called upon to furnish loans on credit, voluntarily or involuntarily, in large amounts for those days. Sometimes, it is said, the money was taken with so little ceremony that it almost amounted to seizure. ⁶

5. Ibid., p. 312.

6. Ibid., p. 315.

Conditions were without precedent and the emergency was great. Nearly all the money was advanced to the government in the first six months of 1861. The amount due the St. Louis Building & Savings Association was $127,613.⁷ The debts to all the banks were soon allowed and paid and where specie had been taken the government allowed 10 per cent interest.⁸

On October 24, 1861, "In consequence of the Cherokee Nations of Indians having joined the Confederate cause, the Assistant Provost Marshall, John McNeil, Colonel of the 19th Regiment of Missouri Volunteers, confiscated about $33,000 belonging to the Indians which they had on deposit in the St. Louis Building & Savings Association."⁹

The little bank began to tighten its belt and put itself on a war-time basis by passing this resolution, "No lunch will be provided, from this date, to the employees of this office," and salaries of employees were fixed as follows until further ordered:

Felix Costa, President	$ 750
P. A. Ladue, Sec.-Treas.	2250
Edwin Warner, Teller	1100
Ad Schenk	} Bookkeepers
R. Zeigler
C. Tompkins
J. R. Sayre, Messenger	300
Jno. McCable, Porter	300

The Stockholders were warned that any delinquent stock would be forfeited.¹⁰

Business in St. Louis was done with bank notes of the state banks until the United States paper money came. Postage stamps were used as small change. Funds of all kinds were being raised by Union as well as Southern sympathizers. In December 1861, a board of citizens met and passed this resolution: "To assess and collect without unnecessary delay, the sum of $500,000 from secessionists and southern sympathizers for the support of families of militiamen and U. S. volunteers as may be left destitute." This order created immense indignation and surprise among the southerners in St. Louis. Although there is no record of the amount of money advanced to the southern cause by St. Louisans, it is thought to be considerable. 11.

By 1862 the terrible hardships of war were being felt and the banks started a movement to aid the volunteers to the Union cause. The Association voted in August, 1862, "to pay $1000 into a fund of $50,000 now being raised and placed in the hands of Major George E. Leighton for relief of soldiers' families and other poor during the coming winter." 12.

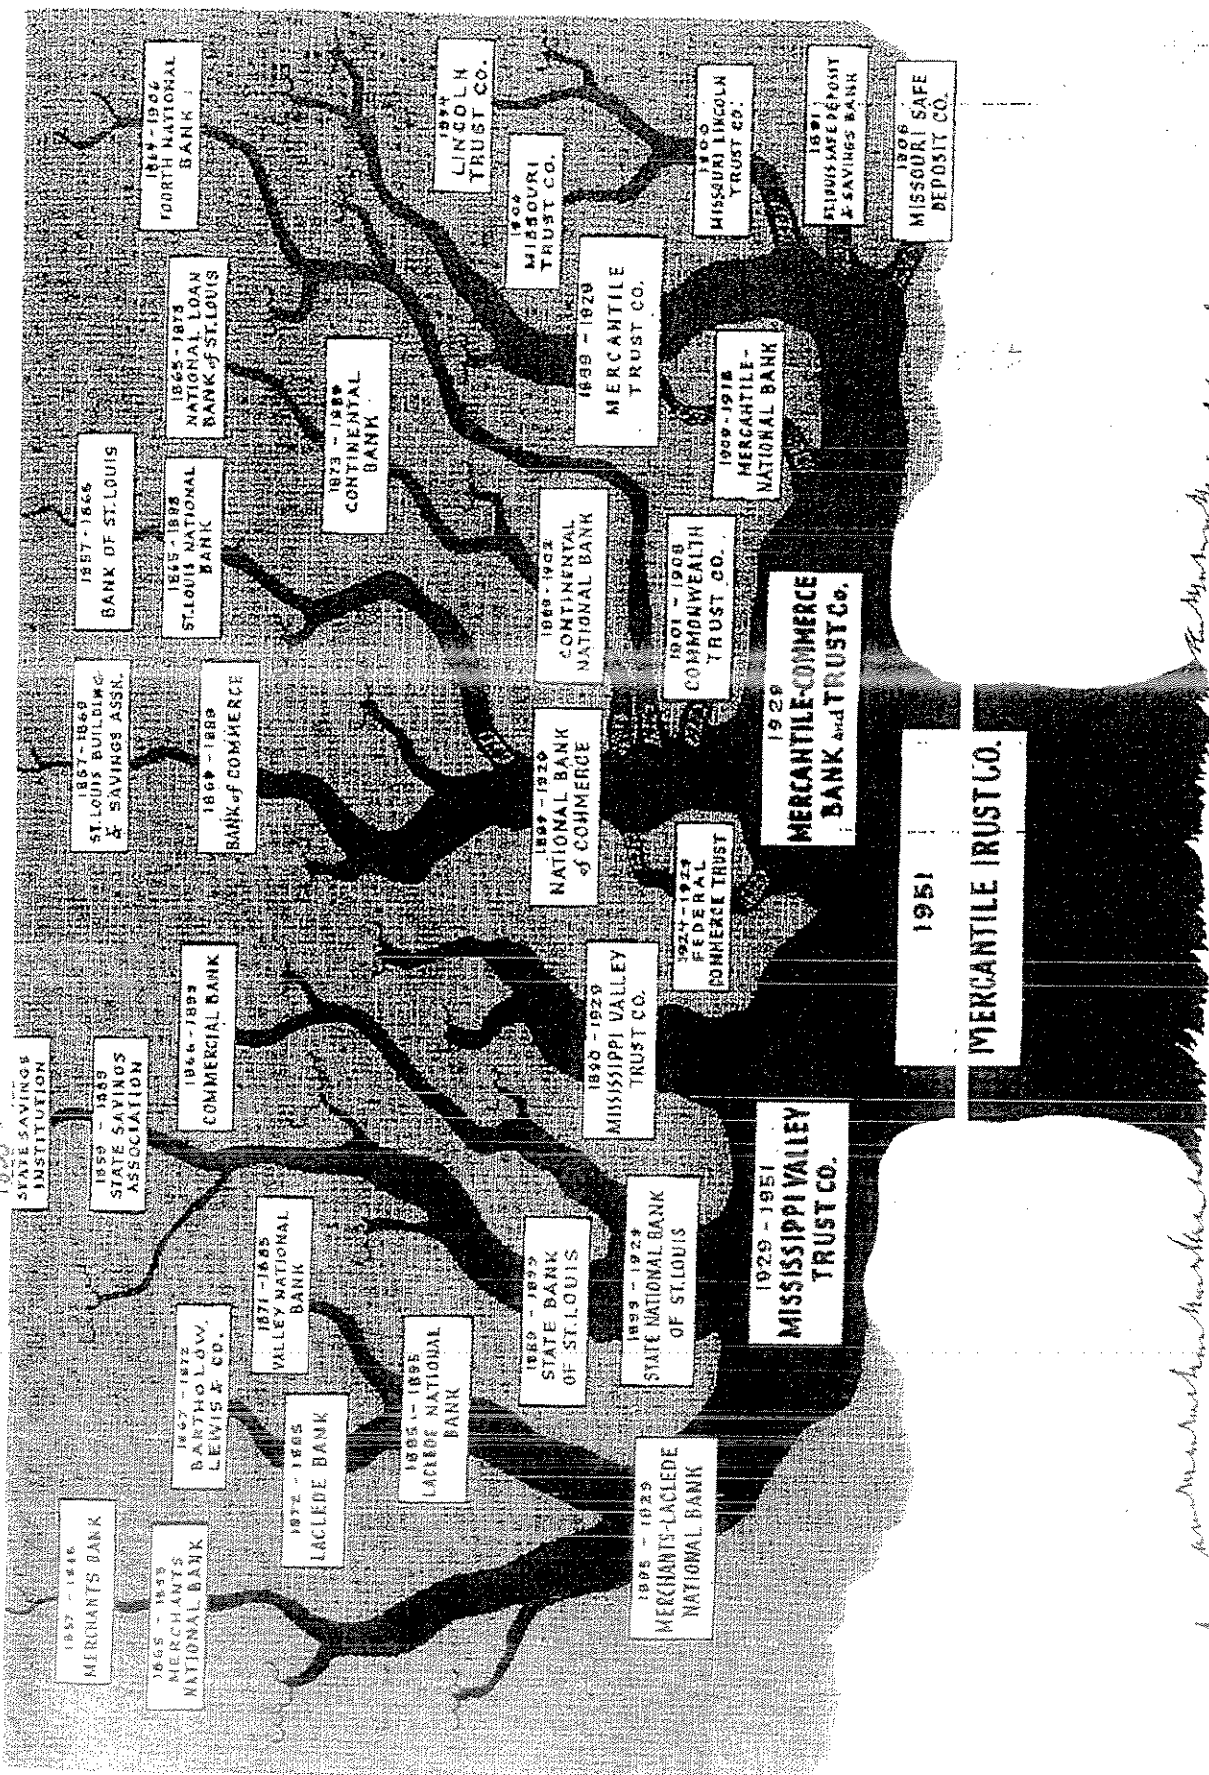

During the last two years of the war, all business settled itself to a more even pace. The St. Louis Building and Savings Association had $200,000 of its capital stock paid in by January, 1863, and it voted to reduce the par value of its shares to $100. The old stock was retired and 2000 shares of paid stock were issued. 13. The bank continued to support the war effort and later that year voted to buy $30,000 of Union bonds. 14. The Pacific Railroad was eager to extend its road west to Jefferson City and to do so issued $1,500,000 in bonds. The directors voted to purchase $25,000 of these first mortgage continuation bonds. 15.

On May 25, 1864, the Board voted "to increase the capital stock of this Association by the sum of $100,000," 16. making it $300,000. On May 31, they resolved to allow interest at the rate of 4% per annum on deposits left three months or longer. 17. The banking-house, lot, furnishings, and fixtures were valued at $25,000. 18.

Even though the bank staff numbered less than ten people, employee problems were rising and the Board dealt with each case individually. For instance, the Board debated at some length before granting a bookkeeper a three Stewart College, and still occupies the position in the University Board. In 1866 he was elected President of the Clarksville Auxiliary Bible Society, which dignified position he still fills. In 1869 he was elected President of the Clarksville Board of Trade at its organization, which place he still fills by successive elections. He was the originator and prime mover in the establishment of Greenwood Cemetery, and has since been the Secretary and Treasurer of the company, and this has been the proudest enterprise of his life. Later he was by unanimous choice made Trustee of the Indiana, Alabama & Texas Railroad by the citizen subscribers to the bonds of the company. Mr. Kennedy became a member of the Presbyterian Church in 1844; was elected Elder in 1849, which place he has continued to fill since, and has been the enterprising and honored Superintendent of the Sunday School of that church since 1870.

Mr. Kennedy was married November 22d, 1843, to Miss Sarah A. Bailey, daughter of James Bailey, of Wilkerson county, Miss., who was a brother of Charles Bailey, Esq., of Clarksville. Mrs. Kennedy when a girl was distinguished for her beauty and personal charms, and loved through life for her amiable disposition and many excellent graces, combining neighborly kindness and charity for all. They have had nine children, having raised six to be prominent men and women, and in age are blessed with grand-children. The surviving six are Mrs. Mary Bryan Owen, Mrs. Sallie Gardner Plunkett, James Thompson, David Newton, the afflicted son, Mrs. Clara Stuart Burney, and Mrs. Ellen Barker Clapp. Mr. Kennedy has been one of the leading spirits in every public enterprise started since his day here, taking stock or paying money to help every scheme worthy of support, and has all the while enjoyed the fullest confidence of the public. Mr. Kennedy is now the only man in active business in Clarksville who was in business on his own account at the time he came here. Mr. John F. Coats was here then, clerking for Williams & Bro., and afterwards engaged in business for himself. He is also the oldest bank officer, though not the oldest man, now in the State, and the oldest insurance agent.

THE BANK OF AMERICA.

The Bank of America was established in Clarksville in 1855, with branches at Dresden and Rogersville, Tenn. Col. M. D. Davie was President, John F. Barnes, Cashier. Charles M. Hiter succeeded Mr. Barnes as Cashier, and Capt. R. Y. Johnson succeeded Mr. Hiter, and proved to be a very efficient and popular officer. Mr. Johnson properly had charge of the branch bank at Dresden for a time. This bank was chartered under the general laws of Tennessee, was perhaps short of capital, and like many others based on the same system, could not withstand the panic of 1857, and was consequently a failure.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Clarksville was organized in 1865 with a capital of $50,000; S. F. Beaumont, President, and W. P. Hume, Cashier. In July, 1867, the capital stock was increased to $100,000. The Board of Directors was composed of S. F. Beaumont, T. F. Pettus, G. W. Hillman, Geo. H. Warfield and B. W. Macrae; S. F. Beaumont, President; B. W. Macrae, Vice-President, and W. P. Hume, Cashier.

These officers continued in charge until February 1st, 1880, when Mr. [name], from infirmities, retired, and Mr. Macrae became the Cashier, and since that time the bank has been under the management of the same President and Cashier. The known integrity of the management at once gave the bank a high commercial standing; the stock was placed above par in the market, and the bank commanded a large and prosperous business. The bank did not issue any circulation until August, 1871, when it put out $90,000 of its own notes, issued under the National banking law, on a basis of $100,000 United States bonds purchased, and that circulation has since been reduced to $22,500, based on $25,000 United States four per cent. bonds, worth twenty-nine per cent. premium. The bank has its capital stock paid up in full, and has a surplus of $22,500, which is $2,500 more than the law requires. It has paid semi-annual dividends to its stockholders regularly every year and without any intermissions for twenty-two years. The excellent management, usefulness and popularity of this bank may better be judged by the value of its stock in the market, which is saleable at twenty-five to thirty per cent. premium. The present Board of Directors is composed of S. F. Beaumont, President; B. W. Macrae, Cashier; J. P. Y. Whitfield, Dr. G. M. Pardue, E. B. Ely, W. F. Taylor and Thomas H. Smith. Messrs. Wm. H. Higgins, Teller, and H. Percy Wisdom, Book-Keeper, have been connected with this bank a number of years, enjoying the fullest confidence of all, and high public esteem. Mr. Higgins has occupied his position since 1872, and Mr. Wisdom since 1877, beginning when quite a youth.

Billy Washington Macrae, present Cashier of the First National Bank, was born in Fauquier county, Virginia, and came to Clarksville with his father in 1849, when a mere youth. His first business engagement was with Hart & Kennedy in 1850, to learn the dry goods business. He continued clerking in this house during the existence of the firm, and after the dissolution continued as clerk for John S. Hart, who succeeded Hart & Kennedy, until 1853. With three years' experience, he went to Nashville to accept a position in the wholesale dry goods house of A. J. Duncan & Co. He was, however, soon induced by Mr. E. Howard to return and assist him in winding up his banking business, with a view to a business engagement in New Orleans, which was afterwards abandoned on account of Mr. Howard's death. The banking business was soon closed, and in December of that year (1853) he formed a partnership with John S. Hart in two houses, one John S. Hart & Co., dry goods house, and the other, B. W. Macrae & Co., grocery house. Mr. Hart managed the dry goods business and Mr. Macrae the grocery house. While this partnership trade was pending, an old and successful grocery man advised Mr. Hart against it, upon the grounds that Macrae was too young, inexperienced, unknown, and too modest and diffident to manage such a house. Mr. Hart knew the facts and appreciated the last named traits of character in the young man, but whether they would operate against him, as the old gentleman advised, was the question. Having had young Macrae in his house three years, and knowing his business qualifications, punctuality, correct methods and high integrity, he believed that these would combine with other qualities to inspire public confidence and win success, and in this he was correct. Mr. Macrae at once bought a large stock of groceries for the firm, and in the conduct of the business his first move was to establish monthly auction sales as a means of advertising and becoming acquainted with the people. The prediction of failure on the part of Mr. Hart's friends and advisors, rather put the young man on his metal, and the amount of energy and business tact that developed behind his modest diffidence, was surprising to some people and most gratifying to his partner. The first auction sale took place in February, 1854, Mr. O. M. Blackman acting as auctioneer. Twenty hogsheads of fresh New Orleans sugar were rolled out on the Public Square, from the old house which occupied the present site of John Hurst & Co.'s building, some fifty sacks of new coffee and a variety of other staple and fancy groceries. The sale had been well advertised and the square was packed with wealthy farmers and country merchants from Christian, Trigg, Logan, Todd, Warren and Simpson counties, Ky., and as far back as people hauled tobacco to this market. Everything was sold out according to advertised terms, the sale rushed through, amounting to $5,000 or more, realizing a handsome profit. By this means the reputation of the house was at once as well established as the oldest concern in the place. Accounts had been made and business relations opened with almost every substantial farmer in the country. It gave the house the pick of the trade, and inspired people with confidence in the integrity of its management, who waited for the monthly sales, and continued to deal with the house, which took the lead in the grocery line, doing the largest business in the town. In 1856 Hart and Macrae formed a partnership with Henry Hart in the grocery business in Nashville, under the firm name of Hart, Macrae & Co., also continuing their two houses here, and the three houses continued to do a prosperous business up to 1858, passing through the year of 1857 unscathed; when the Messrs. Harts, having accumulated a comfortable sum, concluded to retire to farm life, and by mutual consent the three firms were dissolved, Macrae succeeding in the dry goods house, with Mr. B. F. Coulter as partner, under the firm name of Macrae & Coulter, and the Hart brothers settled down to stock raising in Robertson county, north of Springfield. The firm of Macrae & Coulter continued to do a successful and leading business until the fall of 1862, when the house was closed until after the war, when it was reopened by Mr. Coulter and G. W. Hillman, under the firm name of Coulter & Hillman. Mr. Macrae retired from business until 1867. During that year he took a prominent place in the management of the First National Bank, and was later elected Cashier, where he has continued since, a most efficient financier. He has since 1873, the organization, been President of Greenwood Cemetery Company, is Secretary and Treasurer of the Water Works Company, has been prominently connected with the building and loan associations of the city from their organization, and is now President of the Citizens' Building and Loan Association. In fact he has been connected with almost every public enterprise of the city since the war, taking an interest in everything calculated to advance the public welfare, enjoying the full confidence of all citizens, and generally called to take a front or leading place for his known prudence, good business sense and consideration. Mr. Macrae united with the Methodist Church in 1852, and in 1854 was elected a Steward in the church, which place he has continued faithfully in. He is Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the Tennessee Conference, and President of the Board of Trust for superannuated preachers. He has generally been a delegate and efficient member of Annual Conference since his connection with the church. He was Chairman of the Building Committee in the erection of the handsome Methodist church edifice on Madison street, which reflects so much credit on the denomination in Clarksville, Messrs. A. Howell and John D. Moore being the other members. Mr. Macrae was married October 2d, 1856, to Miss Alice Miller, daughter of Mr. John C. Miller of Montgomery county, who immigrated from Virginia, a lady greatly esteemed for her lovely character. Mrs. Macrae died in 1873, and her remains rest in Greenwood, the spot marked by a modest and most beautiful marble monument. Three children were born of this marriage, who still survive, and are greatly esteemed for their worth to society, Mrs. Virginia Stuart Bailey, Mrs. Mary Chapman Drane, and son, John Miller. Mr. Macrae was the builder of his own elegant home which he now occupies, a plot of fifteen acres on Madison avenue, fronting with a beautiful maple lawn and charming residence, which was erected in 1872. The lovely grove of shade trees in front were planted by him about the time the building was erected.

Mr. Sterling F. Beaumont, President of the First National Bank of Clarksville, was born in Lynchburg, Virginia, in 1825—"a noble son of a noble sire"—and was brought to Clarksville by his father, Rev. Henry F. Beaumont, when only three years of age, and was reared and educated here. The family is of French-English descent. Much may be known of the general character of the man by reading a sketch of his father, on page 173 of this book; for, according to the old saying, he is a chip off of the original block. In other words, he inherits many of the noble traits of his honored father. True, he is not a minister of the gospel, but as a business man of high honor, a citizen faithful to every duty, upholding morality, virtue and Christianity, a most generous friend with a heart full of sympathy for distress in all classes of society, a man without enemies, enjoying everybody's friendship and highest confidence, he is in a full sense his father's counterpart. Mr. Beaumont, after a liberal education at the Clarksville Male Academy, took a full course of studies in Lagrange College, in Alabama, where he graduated, and after returning home he read law for some time. He, however, soon found out that he did not possess that peculiar talent or higher qualifications which makes the most successful lawyers. He possessed no tact for prevaricating, or whipping the devil around the stump, and, moreover, his inclination lead him to different and wider fields. Dropping the law, he turned to buying and selling land on speculation. It was a most opportune time for a young man without money if he only had good credit, which Mr. Beaumont had, and which he has scrupulously maintained to the present day. His father at that day had not accumulated sufficient means to spare from his own business to set his children up, and Sterling struck out boldly on his own account. At that time land was continually advancing and his judgment was not mistaken. Success attended his speculations, and in 1845 or 1846 he was enabled to start a wholesale and retail grocery house, which business he maintained successfully up to 1853, when he closed out to engage in the tobacco business, in which pursuit he has since continued, attended with great prosperity, and he now owns and operates one of the largest stemmeries in Clarksville, besides being interested in large houses at other points and buying tobacco regularly on the Board. Mr. Beaumont was elected President of the First National Bank at the time of its organization in 1865, and has been re-elected successively every year since, filling the place with distinguished ability and to the fullest satisfaction of the stockholders, maintaining the highest credit for the institution. He was also continually re-elected President of the Tobacco Board of Trade up to November, 1884, when he declined re-election on account of partial deafness, which made it difficult for him to transact the business with that facility he desired. Mr. Beaumont belongs to the Masonic fraternity and is an old line Whig in politics, since the war acting with the Democracy, but never taking any leading part or acting the politician.

Mr. Beaumont was married in 1853, by Rev. A. L. P. Grenn, to Miss Maria L. Conrad, a native of Springfield, Tennessee, and daughter of Mr. George W. Conrad, a distinguished citizen of Robertson county. It was a happy union blessed with and attended with sweeter joys than youth's early dreams could imagine. Mrs. Beaumont is a lady of cultivated intellect and high order of business capacity, who has performed well not only her part, but relieved her husband of the details and worry of home affairs, that all of his time and study might be given to the avocations which men for an income. What a wonderful blessing is such a wife to a man having a family, taking fully half of the burden, relieving him of the drudgery that he would otherwise have to bear, and making the race of life unencumbered by the many smaller cares. Such has been the kind and character of this most estimable lady, neglecting none of her duties to church and society. The improvement of their elegant home on Madison avenue is due to her excellent taste, skill and good management. This is a ten-acre plat, with splendid residence, beautiful lawn of forest trees, gravel drives, a lake, flower garden, fruits and many beautiful ornamentations, and all the comforts that could be desired. Mrs. Beaumont was born in 1833, and to this union were born five children: Laura Elhan, Adaline, Mary Boyd and Sterling F. All but Mary Boyd survive. Mr. Beaumont followed the example of his father in his religion. He united with the Methodist Church in early life and has since lived a Christian, carrying his religion into his every day business. Mrs. Beaumont has also been a faithful member, bringing up their children in the faith.

CLARKSVILLE NATIONAL BANK.

Clarksville National Bank was organized early in 1868 under the name of Montgomery Savings Institution, with B. O. Keesee, President, and J. E. Broaddus, Cashier. Mr. Broaddus served only a few months when he resigned, and Mr. A. Howell was elected to the place, which he has so efficiently and satisfactorily filled nineteen years and likely to fill during life. After the death of Mr. Keesee Mr. Henry C. Merritt was elected President and still fills that position. About 1870 the bank purchased the old Tennessee Bank building, west side of Public Square, its present comfortable quarters, and changed its name to that of "Bank of Clarksville," and later changed from the methods under the State laws to the National Bank system, taking the name of "Clarksville National Bank." Its capital is $50,000 paid up, and a surplus fund of $10,000, with $10,000 undivided profits. It has been characterized by prudent, cautious management, enjoying public confidence and realizing handsome profits, declaring regular semi-annual dividends of five per cent. to its stockholders (ten per cent. per annum) and its stock is worth forty per cent. premium on the market. It has lacked nothing in its accommodating spirit to advance public interest and enterprise. Grundy Gilbert, a most efficient accountant and excellent young man, is the book-keeper, and Archer Howell the reliable young clerk.

Mr. Bell O. Keesee, President of the Montgomery Savings Institution, which name was changed to Bank of Clarksville, and later to Clarksville National Bank, was born in Montgomery county, on the south side of Cumberland River, and died December 30th, 1875. Mr. Keesee was in every sense a self-made man, and lived a life of such varied activity and usefulness, that it would be difficult to record his many good deeds and acts of usefulness. He was brought up on a farm, raised very poor, and attained a very limited education. At the age of twenty years he came to Clarksville and opened a small grocery on very limited capital. Demonstrating his capacity for business and sagacious trading, he was shortly after taken in the wholesale and retail grocery house of Sawyer, Wallace & Co. In 1851 he again commenced business on his own account, and was very prosperous, winning his way to public confidence and accumulating money at every turn. In 1852 he was happily married to Miss Cornelia R. Peacher, daughter of Peter Peacher, now Mrs. Ed. Turnley. She made him a noble wife, a true helpmate, and his course was onward and upward. He seemed to possess a
