I am writing to suggest the exploration of self-driving vehicles for surveillance purposes in areas with a high crime rate. As reported by Vice in an article titled, "San Francisco Police Are Using Driverless Cars as Mobile Surveillance Cameras" [VICE], autonomous vehicles equipped with cameras can provide continuous footage, potentially aiding investigations.

Additionally, similar to the San Francisco Police Department seeking access to Ring cameras [VICE], I believe a voluntary video submission program could be beneficial. This would allow residents with security cameras, like Ring, to easily share relevant footage through a secure online portal. This would offer another layer of surveillance without infringing on privacy, as participation would be completely voluntary.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I would appreciate receiving any response via email, as I am unavailable to answer calls from unknown numbers.
