	San Francisco is already spending more on homelessness than nearly any other city in the country, yet the crisis on our streets continues to worsen. This new $390 million bond asks voters to pour even more money into a system that has proven to be ineffective and mismanaged. We agree that San Francisco must focus on shelter, recovery, and mental health services. However, the City should reallocate existing resources rather than burdening taxpayers with additional debt. Proposition C, passed in 2018, was intended to address homelessness by creating a dedicated fund from the gross receipts tax. But where has that money gone? Instead of throwing more money at the problem, we need reforms to ensure that funds are effectively allocated to high-impact programs that deliver real results. Furthermore, many of the non-profits currently receiving City funding are not meeting performance goals. Some have been accused of fraud. Some are enabling and attracting drug tourists. It's time to hold these organizations accountable by defunding those that underperform and redirecting those resources to programs that actually work. This bond is not the solution. It's a costly Band-Aid that ignores the real issues within our current system. San Francisco voters should demand accountability and effective reform before agreeing to fund another $390 million in homeless services. B Vote NO on the Proposition B. ----- The Briones Society WWW.brionessociety.org
